WESTMINSTER CARES: A CONTINUUM OF SERVICE TO THE COMMUNITY

By Susan Harlow

Nearly 40 years after it began, Westminster Cares is planning a transition to a new leader. Donna Dawson, its current - and only the second - director, will retire within the next year or two, and the organization's board of directors has started looking for her replacement.

"We would like to find someone who looks to the future, cares deeply about the community, especially older adults, and brings new energy and ideas as the organization moves forward," Donna says.

As the community changes and continues to age, Westminster Cares' mission becomes even more important, she says. "Especially in this economic climate, where will we be most needed? For instance, older people are working longer and are healthier – how can we support them?"

What will the new director inherit? A long and outstanding history of community engagement, and assistance. Westminster Cares has been helping seniors and disabled adults live independently in the community for thirty-seven years.

It began simply in 1988, as a few local people realized the growing requirements of an aging community. Residents, especially the elderly, needed rides to church and a little help with household chores, like stacking wood. So, Karen Walter, Barbara Greenwood, Jim Matteau, Phyllis Anderson, and others figured out a way to help. Those in need would call Karen at her home; she relayed requests on to other volunteers.

Meanwhile, Judi Petry wrote several grants for a parttime position. With Putney Cares' permission to use their name, Westminster Cares formed a 501(c)(3) non-profit and served the community for 13 years. In 1999, WC held a quilt show – the first of nine – to raise money for the new director. That has been followed by 22 years of annual garden tours, which continue today as the organization's biggest fund raiser.

Ronnie Friedman was hired as the first paid part-time director, in 2001, and rented its first office, in the Westminster Motel. Over the years, it has added programs like yoga, a healthy foods workshop, Strong Living exercise classes, weekly senior meals, and Secrets of Healthy Aging, which ran for 16 years. WC volunteers gleaned local farm fields to deliver fresh produce to Our Place and other community spaces. Seniors got involved in the Green Mountain Senior Games. With a grant from the Council on Aging, the Westminster Gazette was started.

When Ronnie saw the need for a Meals on Wheels program, Kurn Hattin offered to make all the meals, and the organization's signature service began in 1990. "We put out a request for volunteers and we got 50—many more than we needed," Karen says. "That's the strength of the thing – lots of people wanted to help out, right from the beginning."

Donna also began as a Westminster Cares volunteer. She holds a master's degree in social work and has always worked in the field, usually with children and families. After she and her husband, Don, moved to Westminster in 2009, Don volunteered to deliver Meals on Wheels, then was elected to the board of directors. That encouraged Donna to volunteer, too. She was hired as assistant director in 2012, when Ronnie began thinking about retiring, and then promoted to Director in January 2014. At the end of 2014, the office moved to the Westminster Institute.

Requests for Meals on Wheels doubled during Covid. But WC maintained services all through it, while keeping its volunteers and people they served safe. "Closing our doors was never something we had to consider," Donna says.

She says her social work experience has been critical in her job: skills such as fund raising, and planning and working within a budget. "In a small organization like this, the director has to wear a lot of hats," Donna says. "I love the variety, anything from picking up equipment to planning a fund raiser to working directly with families. I'd never worked in the same community I'd lived in before, and I like that a lot."

Pete Harrison has been key to her involvement, filling her in on the who, what, where, and why of the community, and helping out in many ways. Volunteers like Pete mean everything to Westminster Cares, Donna says. Many have been donating their time, skills, and money for decades. "They really do the work of the organization - they are the lifeblood. I feel lucky because I inherited such a robust organization already with a pool of amazing volunteers and a base of high-quality programs."

The board of directors has also been very hands-on; they also pitch in. "People come forward to volunteer; we rarely have to ask. They are such good ambassadors; they talk to their friends and find out who may need services."

Those volunteers will be especially crucial going forward. Local social services are needed more than ever, and communities will have to step up and take care of their own. Westminster is truly lucky in that regard. "It's amazing how many people just help out, reaching out to neighbors and those who may not have family in the community. The ethic of caring for people in the community is really strong here," Donna says.

Board President, Lori Larue says that "Working with Donna has been a pleasure and a privilege. She has been a trusted leader and good fit for WC, and as I have said on many occasions she is the face of Westminster Cares. While change can be scary, and we hate to see Donna retire, we are excited to launch the search for a new Director who can carry out the organization's mission in the coming years."

"WE ARE HERE TO SELL COWS" LEVI CHICKERING REMEMBERS WESTMINSTER'S CHICKERING FARM

"We Are Here To Sell Cows" is a memoir by Levi Chickering of his time in the family business, Westminster Commission Auction Sale. The Auction ran from 1942 to 1960, located in the big barns on Rt. 5 now home to the Goodells' dairy business, Westminster Farms. Levi, who now lives in Florida, writes of how it began and about his family and the many workers and customers who were part of Westminster Auction. The Gazette will be publishing extracts from Levi's writing over the next few months. - Mary Scherbatskoy

I. The Westminster, Vermont Dairy Cow Auction Sale

The Westminster Auction came into being the day Albert F. Chickering purchased the Fenn Dairy Farm in Westminster, Vermont. The Fenn farm, which had survived the devastating 1936 Connecticut River flood, managed to recover and operate for several more years. Fred Fenn had decided to retire from milking cows and he decided to step away from the milk business altogether.

In 1942, Fred Fenn's decision came soon after the death of his brother, Howard Fenn. With his loss weighing on him, Fred chose to call it quits, sell off the dairy herd, stop the dairy product sales, and part with the farm itself.

Entered New Owner

With Albert F. Chickering's arrival and the purchase of the Fenn Farm, the Westminster Vermont Dairy Cow Auction was born—a local event that would soon grow into one of the largest dairy cow auctions in the country. The auction continued for the next 18 years, and was held every Thursday, week after week, finalizing in November of 1960. It had become a fixture in the lives of farmers and dairy cow dealers throughout the eastern United States and Canada.

My Father Arthur H. Chickering Jr, was a dairy cowman and dealer through and through—boots by the door, hay in his pockets, and the scent of barns trailing behind him like a loyal dog. My mother, Irene, had a gentle touch and baked the best Apple Pie in the valley. My Father was always buying and selling Dairy Cows, one at a time or in droves. We didn't need much in those days, just the land beneath our feet and the dream my Father carried deep within his heart. It was a dream that would, by 1948, lead him to join his brother, Albert F. Chickering, in continuing to build the largest Dairy Cow Auction Sale in the eastern half of the United States, located in Westminster, Vermont.

I grew up in Walpole, New Hampshire, attending kindergarten through high school. Once I graduated, I served time in the United States Army, before proudly stepping into my Father's footsteps and joining him in his next big venture. It all began on a crisp November night, with the wind rattling the windows and the smell of wood smoke in the air—a pure life, with a purpose already set: "We Are Here to Sell Cows." Dairy cows, that is.

BDCC Receives Prestigious STRIVE AWARD NAMES GOLDBERG STRIVE LIASON

The Brattleboro Development Credit Corporation (BDCC) is proud to announce its role as a liaison partner in the newly funded Science and Technology Research Initiative for the Southern Vermont Economy (STRIVE), a transformative program supported by the National Science Foundation's EPSCoR initiative.

This milestone comes as BDCC welcomes Neil Goldberg to the team to help leverage this opportunity and strengthen investment deal flow across the region.

STRIVE is hosted by Landmark College, which serves as the lead institution for the program. Landmark is proud to be partnering with BDCC, Bennington College, and the Community College of Vermont (CCV) to ensure successful implementation. Together, these institutions form a regional collaborative network designed to build science and technology capacity while fueling economic development across Windham, Bennington, Rutland, and Windsor counties.

STRIVE brings together educational institutions, businesses, advocacy groups, economic developers, and local governments to create a more inclusive and transformative STEM ecosystem. BDCC, as the regional liaison, plays a key role in embedding within this network and unlocking new pathways for innovation and entrepreneurship.

Through STRIVE, BDCC is strategically positioned to identify promising business connections and STEM related ventures at an early stage and connect stakeholders with a continuum of support. This includes technical assistance, mentorship, and direct connections to capital providers.

"This partnership allows us to align our investment strategies with the region's emerging talent and innovation," said BDCC Executive Director Adam Grinold. "It's a unique opportunity to surface high-potential, often overlooked ventures and bring them into our regional economic ecosystem."

This early identification of STEM-focused businesses enhances regional opportunities to identify opportunities for growth and strategic collaboration and supports BDCC's broader mission. Through vehicles like the Windham Investment fund, BDCC will continue to deploy capital into enterprises that position

Southern Vermont as a competitive, innovation-driven

To support this expansion, BDCC is excited to introduce Neil Goldberg, who will be deeply involved in executing the STRIVE liaison role. A native of Southern Vermont, Neil brings rich, cross-sector experience in hospitality, real estate, and consumer packaged goods, giving him valuable insight into building and scaling diverse business ventures.

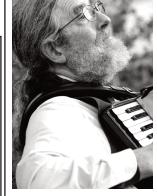

Neil holds both a bachelor's degree in Economics and Community Development and a Master of Business Administration from the University of Vermont. "It's a privilege to return to my home region and contribute to such meaningful work," said Goldberg. "I'm passionate about building systems that uplift both people and places."

Outside of work, Neil enjoys hiking with his dog, playing soccer, and preparing elaborate meals for friends and family.

With the STRIVE program underway and Neil's leadership in place, BDCC is positioned to play a pivotal role in shaping the future of Southern Vermont's innovation economy.

ANDY DAVIS AT GUILFORD FAIR

Local songwriter, dance caller and musician Andy Davis will perform at the Guilford Fair on Sunday, August 31 at 1 p.m.

Andy's songs relate to local history and to his many years of living in Windham County. Andy is currently one of the choir directors at the Guilford Community Church. For many years he was a member of Nowell Sing We Clear while teaching music in both Brattleboro and Dover.

He plays the accordion and piano, and often weaves dance tunes in and among the words of his songs. This performance will include "Gold into Straw" in honor of the Rich Earth institute, as well as songs about local dances, teaching music in Windham County and the wonders of the bicycle.

Andy will have copies of his recently published songbook, Gold into Straw. For more information visit andy@dancingmasters.com.

WCS BACK TO SCHOOL

Westminster Center School has had a busy summer hosting the WCS Summer Program.

Students have enjoyed four weeks of both academic and enrichment activities, weekly swimming sessions, and weekly field trips. We cannot thank our staff enough for bringing enthusiasm and creativity every day!

Throughout the summer WCS has had a variety of upgrades including a finalized solar array project courtesy of the Westminster Reserve Fund and a new outdoor basketball court courtesy of the Dascomb Fund.

WCS will be welcoming two new faces to our staff. Mickaelah Simpson will be joining us as a special education case manager. Mickaelah joins our team with experience working with students with a wide range of abilities. She brings a level of enthusiasm and curiosity to our staff that our students will love.

Mallory Newton joins Westminster as a paraprofessional. Mallory has experience working with preschool aged children and will be working primarily in our kindergarten classrooms. She is eager to get to know our students and staff and deepen her knowledge of instructional practices.

Please join WCS in welcoming Mickaelah and Mal-

Westminster Center School will hold our annual Back to School Open House on Monday, August 25th from 5:30-6:30. This is an opportunity for families to meet their child's teacher, see their classroom, and visit all areas of the school. Our first day of school is Wednesday, August 27th and we couldn't be more excited!

Nature Notes - Were They Mink?

by Alma Beals, Vermont Master Gardener and Naturalist

On August 2 at 7:30 in the morning, I was sitting at my kitchen table enjoying my cup of coffee when a motion on my lawn caught my eye. Three animals were loping, running in a line nose-to-tail the way baby animals do. My first impression was young mink. But were they?

They looked black but could have been dark brown. I saw them for only about two seconds as they dashed from my front garden to the shrubs. I was looking at their sides from a back view so I have no idea what their head ends looked like.

From their loping

(humping along) gait, I think they must have been in the weasel family Mustelidae, which is the largest family of carnivorous mammals, most of which have short legs, long bodies, moderately long tails, and are solitary, nocturnal and active year-round. They are ermine, long-tailed weasel, American mink, fisher, American marten and American river otter.

Mink photos by Don Clark

Having lived by the Saxtons River for several years, I am familiar with seeing mink running along the riverbank, but I am not familiar with the others in the weasel family. I picture mink living along streams, lakes, ponds, and marshes as they are semi-aquatic and good swimmers. But they also can be found in the woods. In the water, they eat fish, frogs, and crayfish whereas in the woods, they eat small mammals like mice and rabbits.

They travel a great distance to find a mate and breed in late February to May. Their den sites are in the nearby woods under roots or logs, cavities in banks or in hollow trees.

I wonder if the three I saw were moving from their den toward water or if their mother was leading them and I just didn't see her. Were they mink?

WESTMINSTER SAMPLER - WESTMINSTER BUSINESSES

By Jessie Haas

Westminster is now a farming and bedroom community. If people don't earn a living on the land, by and large they work out of town. But in earlier times, many more people farmed, and there were more small businesses in town.

In 1884, according to Hamilton Child's Windham County Gazetteer, 260 heads of household in Westminster were farmers or retired farmers; 4 of these were women. Thirty-one heads of household were laborers: 25 millworkers, 12 carpenters, 7 in the painting, whitewashing or wallpapering business, 7 teamsters, 6 blacksmiths, 5 manufacturers, a couple of lawyers, and 1 artist.

Many Westminster farmers still bred Merino sheep, though the big Vermont sheep bubble had burst a generation ago. There were many sugar orchards, and dairy was becoming more important. Lumber was also a cash crop, with the farmers of Westminster cutting and delivering thousands of sleepers and many cord of firewood to the railroad. Sawmills continued to operate locally; in 1884 Alfred Harlow's sawmill turned out a million feet of sawn lumber a year.

Farm machinery was in a period of innovation, and a few farmers were also equipment dealers. George Campbell's sons, on the main road leading to Westminster West, were agents for St. Albans Horse Power and Threshing Machine and for Kemp Manure Spreaders. Orestes Peck was the agent for Granite State Mower.

Other businesses were based on invention. Benjamin T. Phelps grew up in Westminster in the 1850s, served in the Twelfth Vermont Regiment during the Civil War, and worked as a bookkeeper and collector until his health compelled him to choose an outdoor occupation. He came back to Westminster where he became a tobacco farmer, raised lambs, and started the Crescent Poultry Farm.

He married Annie Holton, daughter of Nodiah, and with her invented and patented a method of custom fitting ladies and children's garments called the Excelsion Square system. The Phelpses received a Bronze Medal

Hurry up the Corn Your chief trouble will be to get the corn to the machine fast enough, if you have an Abenaque Gasoline Engine and Papec Pneumatic Cutter

The blower cutter that requires the least power, and the engine that gives the most—an ideal ensilage outfit. The cutter is of most modern type, runs fast and easily, and will elevate ensilage to highest silo. The Abenaque is not only good for your ensilage cutter, but is guaranteed to have a wider range of work, and to give you less trouble than any other gasoline engine made. Mounted or unmounted: you can set it down any where, in any position, and Abenaque Machine Works, WESTMINSTER at the Massachusetts Charitable Design exhibition. They published a 32-page book of instructions, The Excelsior Square, in which they claimed that the rules of drafting patterns were "made so plain and easy that any one can learn to use this system from the Instruction Book alone, without the aid of a teacher."

Possibly; my mind boggled after a brief look at the instructions, which are available on Amazon, amazingly enough, in a Forgotten Books series. Sewing afficionados, please look this up on archive.org and let the Historical Society know what you think.

Woolen and paper mills continued until nearly the 1900s. The Clapp woolen mill at the south end of the village continued under the ownership of Harlan Farr. The paper mill in the Forest in North Westminster begun by Bill Blake was continued by his cousin Charles Marshall Blake under the name Blake and Higgins.

The Gage family made baskets in Gageville, and Walter Gage developed a new kind of clothespin, a spring pin made entirely of wood. The Gages set up a separate clothespin factory next to the basket factory to turn them out.

Also in the late 1800s the Vermont Valley Creamery, located on School Street, was organized by farmers from Westminster, Walpole, and Putney; the creamery was always primarily Westminster run. It used milk from 200 cows at the beginning, and had 12 patrons. The Creamery grew to have 140 patrons, and made between 4,000 and 4,300 pounds of butter a week.

Westminster butter had an excellent reputation and brought a good price. The contribution to farmers' pocketbooks was significant. In April 1902, for instance, the creamery paid out $3,875.00. Butter makers generally lived in an apartment on the second floor of the creamery building (the last house before the west corner of School Street).

Other businesses were clustered in Westminster Station, handy to the railroad. A Mr. Butterfield had a pail factory and gristmill there; he would later endow the Westminster library. H.C.

Baxter & Brothers of Brunswick, Maine, built a corn cannery in The Station in 1892, having been granted a tax exemption by the town. They, too, provided farm income, as farmers grew sweet corn for the cannery by contract, and worked at the factory during canning sea-

Locals also sold firewood to the cannery to use in its cooking and canning processes. During August and September the air at The Station was filled with a heavy corn smell and flies abounded. But the cannery provided farmers with cash to pay their taxes, and provided local women and young people a chance to earn wages for a few months. As of 1927 it employed 149 people, both men and women. The men received $4.00/day, the women $2.50.

Just down the road was the Abenaque Machine Works (ad in photo above), started in 1893 by the Gilbert family. The gasoline engines made there were shipped around the country, and were also used at the Baxter cannery and E.C. Wellman's carriage shop in Westminster West. Abenaque employed between 15 and 40 people over the years, making Westminster Station a hopping manufacturing center in the early 1900s. It's difficult to picture now, but if you visit the archives you can see some of the photos of a very different time in our town.

NEWS FROM WESTMINSTER VOLUNTEER FIRE AND RESCUE

The Westminster Fire & Rescue Department holds their monthly meetings at 7 p.m. on the 1st Tuesday of the month and a combined drill on the 3rd Tuesday of the month. Rescue training is the 2nd Tuesday of the Next association meeting Tuesday, Sept. 2 at 7 p.m. The Prudential Committee normally meets once or twice a month. A warning will be posted 48 hours prior to each meeting.

Unless otherwise called for a special meeting, the Prudential Committee meets on the 3rd Sunday of every month at the Fire House on Grout Ave at 10 a.m.

Next prudential meeting Sept. 21.

Number of calls in July: 51 Number of calls through August 22: 22

Number of calls calendar year to date: 390

Number of calls fiscal year, July 1st to date: 73

Association Meeting: The Westminster Fire and Rescue Association met for their regular meeting Tuesday, Aug. 5 with President J.T. Tabolt presiding. There were 29 members present and 4 excused. Currently there are 47 members of the volunteer fire department

Emergency off-road: The department is looking for names of anyone who has an off-road vehicle that they would be willing to operate in case of an emergency requiring off road or 4-wheelers. Contact any member of the department if this is something you are willing and able to make available.

Fire wood: Be sure your firewood is well cured and not too green before using it. Green or uncured wood can create creosote and possibly cause a chimney fire. Also when covering your wood pile, cover the top only and leave the sides exposed to the air and sunlight. Wood that is completely covered can rot instead of drying.

Back to School: Now that school has begun there will be a lot of students walking to and from school. There are no sidewalks in many areas forcing students to walk in the roadways. Walkers should remember to always walk on the left side of the road facing traffic and bike riders need to be riding with the flow of traffic on the right side.

As it is getting darker earlier each day, walkers and bikers will need to wear light colored clothing and reflective vests when traveling in the dark or diminished light. And having a flashing light on both front and rear of your bike is a very good idea even during the daylight. Drivers should be extra cautious with more pedestrians and bikes on the roads.

FIRE EXTINGUISHERS FOR SALE: Anyone want to buy a fire extinguisher? We have them for sale and there are 4 sizes available. See the Chief or stop by the fire station for more information if interested.

Emergency responses: July turned out to be another very busy month with 51 calls for the month. Here is the breakdown for the 51 calls: 35 rescue/medical calls; 6 motor vehicle accidents; 3 for tree on wires/power line down; 1 lift assist; 1 smoke investigation; 1 false alarm; 4 mutual aid calls - 2 to Putney, 1 to Bellows Falls, 1 to Chester.

The Fire & Rescue Association welcomes donations throughout the year from anyone wishing to remember or honor a loved one or a friend. Unless otherwise designated, all memorial and honorary donations go into our scholarship fund to be given out at graduation. Open donations are also appreciated: Send donation to:

10 TIPS TO AVOID INJURY AND SUPPORT AGING IN PLACE DURING FALLS PREVENTION MONTH

September is Falls Prevention Month. Falls Prevention aims to raise awareness about the risks of falls, promote strategies to prevent them, and empower individuals to take proactive measures to improve their safety and protect their health and well-being.

Each year, millions of older people—those 65 and older-fall. In fact, more than one out of four older people fall each year and one out of five falls causes a serious injury such as broken bones or a head injury. Falling just once doubles your chances of falling again.

Home modifications can allow older adult to live safely at home longer. That's important, because 77 percent of adults 50 and older want to stay in their homes as they age, an AARP survey found. Their homes, however, may not be suited to their wishes. The risk of falling rises with age, and most falls happen at home.

"Not every fall causes a catastrophic injury that changes your life. But when they do happen, they can be devastating," says Kathryn Daniel, an adult/gerontological nurse practitioner. Falls can lead to broken bones, like a fractured hip, which can make it hard to get around, do everyday activities or live independently, she adds.

Simple changes can be made in and around your home to help prevent falls and eliminate tripping hazards. Here are 10 suggestions.

1. Remove scatter rugs

Remove throw rugs throughout the home that are easy to trip over. If you must have a rug in the bathroom, make sure it has a no-slip bottom.

2. Declutter

When you've lived in a place for a number of years you can collect a lot of clutter, and that can become a fall risk. Remove items, such as stacks of books or boxes on the floor, that you may trip over or that can cause harm if you fall.

3. Keep pathways clear

Clear pathways of trip hazards — such as clutter, power cords or extra furniture — so that it's easier to move around. This includes hallways as well as the route around your bed to the door. Get electrical cords with flat plugs or place rubber strips over cords.

4. Fix uneven surfaces

As people age, vision changes may mean their depth perception isn't as good as before, and they may not see the details of walking surfaces. Fix uneven walkways and steps inside and outside the home to help prevent falls. Consider adding a contrast color to floors, such as a colorful carpet on a hardwood floor instead of beige, so any surface changes are clear.

5. Shine a light

Good lighting is important to illuminate pathways and surfaces inside and outside the home. Open curtains or blinds to let in natural light. Add extra lighting, such as night-lights in hallways and toe-kick lights or light strips on steps, where needed. Consider motionsensor lighting inside or outside for ease of use.

6. Secure the bathroom

Install a higher toilet or a seat extender, which are better for people with arthritis or knee problems. Other fall-prevention changes include using nonslip rugs, adding a shower chair and installing grab bars near the shower, tub and toilet. Now there are grab bars that come in colors and with prettier finishes or decorative elements."

7. Step up

Add a railing along stairs — or on both sides of steps — to help navigate inside or outside your home. Attach blue packing or painter's tape to the edge of steps so they stand out. Consider building a ramp instead of steps — that leads to the front or back door.

8. Take stock of furniture

Decrease the amount of furniture throughout your home so there are fewer obstacles. If you can afford it, replace sharp-edged furniture with □pieces that have soft, rounded edges to reduce the risk of injury should you fall.

9. Check your vision

Since poor eyesight can lead to falls, older adults should get an eye exam once a year. You may need glasses, have an age-related condition like cataracts or need to update your eyeglass prescription. Cataracts can be removed, and Medicare typically covers the

10. Strengthen muscles

Age-related muscle weakness and deteriorating balance also can contribute to falls. Physical exercise will help to maintain good health and prevent falls. Always consult your physician before starting an exercise program to make sure it aligns with your current state of health. Walking back and forth down your hallway, or from your front door to the back door, is a good way to begin exercising if you can't leave home. Take brisk walks several times a week to strengthen your leg muscles. Before walking, do some light stretches, such as easy bends and knee flexes while holding onto a chair. Exercises like tai chi and gentle yoga can help improve your balance.

CIVIC LIFE SKILLS WORKSHOPS

Get on Board, a program of Brattleboro Development Credit Corporation's Southern Vermont Economy Project, aims to equip participants with practical skills to become more effective and active in local civic life. Four in-person sessions will take place on Sept. 20, Oct. 4, Oct. 25 and Nov. 8 in towns across Southern Vermont. Classes feature state and regional leaders from a variety of organizations, panelists with deep experience in local government, and scholars of government and community development.

Tuition for the program, which includes breakfast and lunch at each session, is $200. Scholarships and sponsored seats are available and can be requested as part of the application process. Applications are being accepted on a rolling basis now through Sept. 12.

For details or if you are interested in sponsoring a participant, visit www.sovermontzone.com/get-on-board or contact Meg Staloff at BDCC at mstaloff@brattleborodevelopment.com or (802) 257-7731 ext. 222.

SEPTEMBER AT THE BUTTERFIELD LIBRARY

By Alison Baitz

Hello Westminster!

Can you believe it's already September? I can't, even though I often joke that I can really sense the passage of time due to the way we circulate our books, stamping each with its due date, three weeks in the future. I'm constantly reminded that next month, next season is just ahead.

Still, surprise: it's September!

Autumn is sure to be a busy time here at Butterfield. While I'm still finalizing some upcoming events, I'll let you know that we're continuing on with our regular ongoing events: preschool storytime is still happening on Monday mornings at 10 a.m. I encourage our community's crafters to check out the twice-monthly craft group (1st Tuesdays 4-8 and 3rd Saturdays 10:30 12:30).

All crafts and all experience levels are very welcome. And we are of course continuing with the Bring Your Own Bookclub, always on the third Tuesday of the month at 5 p.m.

This month we have a very special field trip planned: on Friday, Sept. 12 from 1:30 - 3 p.m. we will visit Dartmouth College's Rauner Special Collections Library. There, Morgan R. Swan, Special Collections Librarian for Teaching and and Scholarly Engagement, will lead us on a tour of some of the library's holdings. The tour can only accommodate a limited number of guests, so if you're interested, please sign up by going to bit.ly/476ufyE or call the library.

Please keep an eye on the library's Facebook page or stop by! — to learn about more upcoming events! There are lots of good things in the works. And, if you have an idea for an event or anything else, please let me

PLANNING COMMISSION LISTENING SESSIONS

The Westminster Planning Commission is excited to announce a series of listening sessions this fall as the commission begins its work on a new Town Plan.

Two events have been scheduled thus far, and at least two more will be added before the Commission begins drafting the updated town plan later this year. The events scheduled thus far are:

- Monday, Sept. 29 from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Westminster Institute/Butterfield Library
- Thursday, Oct. 2, from 6 to 8 pm at Westminster West School/Studio Y

Additionally, the Planning Commission is working to secure an accessible in-person location for at least one listening session in North Westminster and will provide an entirely virtual option via zoom at a date to be determined in late October or early November. Those details will be published in the October edition of the Gazette, as well.

At these listening sessions, Westminster residents will hear a brief overview of the Town Plan process, before participating in a facilitated discussion regarding challenges and opportunities facing Westminster's future.

The Town of Westminster has retained Windham Regional Commission to provide professional support throughout the town plan process, including in preparation for and the execution of these listening sessions.

The listening sessions are a vital opportunity for the Planning Commission to hear directly from Westminster residents about what they would like to see reflected in what is their Town Plan. The Planning Commission is also seeking new members who are interested in joining the Commission and helping to shape the Town Plan. This is an excellent time to join the Commission as the Town Plan work is just getting underway.

Anyone interested in learning more about the listening sessions or joining the Planning Commission is encouraged to reach out to Town Hall via Manager@Westminstervt.org.

"THE ORCHARD MASTER" CELEBRATES APPLES & APPLE GROWERS OCT. 7

September in Vermont is always a celebration of apples, peaches and berries. This year, beginning with the Westminster West Parade and continuing with a special event hosted by the One Wonderful Westminster Committee (aka the Westminster Inclusion Committee) there will be celebration of the local farmers and the workers who do the work to bring them to our tables.

The Allen family founded the Connecticut Valley Orchard 113 years ago and went on to become the largest apple company in New England. Remnants of the buildings still remain and the orchard continues in operation today under Larry and Brandon Allen.

In 2012, on the 100th birthday of the orchard his family runs, Brandon Allen, then 27, pondered his family's apple orchard with the words: "It's kind of unbelievable ... It's crazy to think about everything around them that's come and gone," he said. "If those trees could talk."

The orchard business isn't all fun and games -- apple growers have to deal with freezes (or frosts), droughts and heat waves. The dedication needed to stay in this line of work requires a passion that cannot be generated by dollar signs. Russell, his grandfather (right photo), who was then 80 years old, offered a memory saying "Right after a frost, I met another apple grower and asked him, 'Why are we farmers? Why are we doing this?' And he said, 'Russell, it's because we love it," Allen recalled. "You have to love this business or you can't take the freezes and the frost."

It is that passion that is celebrated in a short film, "The Orchard Master" created locally by Susan and Bruce Wallace and Sue and Dave Perry to honor not only the orchard but the legacy of apples and apple grafting in Vermont.

On Tuesday, Oct. 7 at 6:30 p.m. the film will be shown, followed by a period for questions and answers with the film makers and members of the Allen family at the Butterfield Library. The inclusion Committee will provide cider, donuts and a variety of apples to enjoy.

Everyone is welcome. For more information call Lise Sparrow at 802-345-3982.

Westminster West Community Fair Sept. 6th

The 35th annual Westminster West Community Fair will be on Saturday Sept. 6 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

This year's Parade theme is "HOME GROWN: CELEBRATING AND PROTECTING LOCAL FARMS, FARMERS AND FARM WORKERS."

The Grand Marshals are longtime local farmers Howard and Elizabeth Prussack.

For the truck nerds, they will be driving their old yellow truck, a 1969 Chevy C20, 3/4 ton with 8ft bed.

Other local farmers are invited to join in the parade, bring yourself and your favorite tractor. Our wacky parade is again at 10:30 a.m. and offers an opportunity to meet new neighbors, our local politicians, young bike riders, drummers, accordion players and perennial favorites "Ladies Against Women." And don't forget our Peace Dove.

There'll be the usual selection of entertainment and activities from races in the morning to the talent show in the afternoon. In between there is the fabulous chicken BBQ, the ever popular and exclusive "Whack a Corn Cob" and don't forget to view the work of local artists upstairs or the zany vegetable creations in the foyer of the church (let those zucchinis grow!) The Nature Museum of Grafton will have a table and materials for making Fairy Houses.

The Westminster West Public Library's annual book sale is just down the street.

The Silent Auction will be both online and at the church. The larger and more expensive items will be online. Most of the business donations will be online, but on Fair day there will be an interesting array of additional auction items not in the online silent auction, upstairs in the church for bidding.

In addition, the Golden Elephant Tag Sale will be back again. If you want to be a volunteer to help with the Golden Elephant Tag Sale, call Laura at 802 387-2765 or email her at laladust@gmail.com. (Tag Sale Volunteers get to have first dibs on items in the sale by virtue of seeing them first.)

This event is a wonderful opportunity to gather together as friends and neighbors, to honor the farmers who put food on our table, and have fun and share talents with each other.

It also provides a significant financial contribution to the Church's annual budget for keeping our village church and community gathering center in good repair and available for community use.

ONLINE AUCTION GUIDELINES

If you have an item for the Online Auction, email Cheryl Charles (cherylcharles01@gmail.com) with a photo and description of the item, estimated value, and if there is one, a minimum bid. Online auction Items posted at www.32auctions.com/WestFair 2025AuctionLink and on the church website at westminsterwest.org.

Our deadline for receiving photos and a description of the items for the Online Auction is August 25. The bidding kickoff will be at 9am on Saturday, August 30. Sunday September 7th is the last day of bidding. Bidding closes at 5pm. In the next week, we will arrange transport of auction items to the winners.

If you have something for the baked goods table, the golden elephant Sale or in-person Silent Auction at the church, you can bring it by the week before the fair (5 to 8pm on Tue, Wed and Thur.) or make an appointment for drop off with, Tom Griffith 387-5694 or Laura Williams 387-2765.

Please remember, no electronics, furniture, broken toys or broken anything, books or clothes and do follow the Golden Rule for the sale: donate only what you yourself might want to buy that doesn't create more clutter.

SEPTEMBER BUSINESS OF THE MONTH: HEIDI BERNIER REAL ESTATE AGENT

As a lifelong native of Vermont, with nearly 30 years' experience as a Real Estate Agent, licensed in both Vermont and New Hampshire, I offer my customers and clients a keen familiarity of the area and the local real estate market.

I take pride in providing personalized service, catering to the individual requirements of my clients and customers, along with a creative marketing approach. Trained in representation of homebuyers, as well as sellers, I earned my CBR designation (certified buyer representative) in 1996. In 2022 I earned my Senior Real Estate Specialist Designation in order to better assist the needs of buyers and sellers aged 55+.

Many people and services are required to bring a transaction to a successful closing, including: Mortgage Brokers, Engineers, Building Inspectors, Insurance Agents, Attorney's and Title Companies. My years of working full-time in the field of Real Estate have gained me the contacts and experience needed to guide my clients and customers through the process.

If you are considering selling or buying property, I would welcome the opportunity to be of assistance. 802-380-1585 email: heidi.bernier@berkleyveller.com.

SEPTEMBER BUSINESS OF THE MONTH: JESSICA FULLER EDWARD JONES, WALPOLE, NH

As an Edward Jones Financial Advisor, I partner with individual investors and families in Walpole and neighboring towns to offer tailored investment tions designed to help them reach their long-term goals. It has been an honor to serve this community for the decade. I enjoy helping my clients plan and strategize and am grateful to be an ongoing part of their lives.

Growing up in Northfield, MA I attended Northfield Mount Hermon before earning a bachelor's degree from the Stern School of Business at New York University. From there, I became an investment banker in New York City before returning to New England to be closer to family.

Upon my return, I opened, operated and brought to market a fast casual restaurant that prided itself on sourcing locally grown food and promoting the arts by serving as a venue for local musicians.

My team's mission at Edward Jones is to consistently provide artisanal service, compassionate support and tailored financial advice.

Our discovery process begins by understanding where you are today and identifying your current needs, wants and wishes. From there we determine actionable strategies to help you reach your goals. Where we deliver the most value is with our lifelong relationship with you and our partnership with your professional team. Along the way you will benefit from the support of Senior Branch Office Administrator, Jennifer Skrocki, as well as myself.
